NOTE When you sign up for the site, or if you're already signed up, you get a free 72-hour trial of the software. If you're not satisfied with the way that Photoshop CS6 performs for your needs after that time, you can continue using the trial until you're ready to purchase the software. If you don't want to spend the money on a new copy of Photoshop, you can also download free trial versions of the software at www.adobestudiotraining.com/photoshop-cs6. What's New in Photoshop CS6 The following list outlines some of the new features in Photoshop CS6: Super resolution image and video: Now, with the Command/Ctrl+Shift/Option+Up or Down arrow key, you can toggle between a very high or a very low resolution image without having to crop or reduce the size of your original image. The high-quality image can be used for printing or other purposes, and it looks similar to the images you see in magazines. Red Eye Fix: With this feature, you have the ability to repair the red-eye-like appearance of someone's eyes. With this tool, you draw a box around the eyes that you want to repair and then choose Red Eye Fix. You can fix or eliminate the problem by using a yellow color fill or by applying a white overlay. The ACR image format: The new ACR image format is intended to represent and serve as a native representation for many image processing operations. In previous versions of Photoshop, you had to use other image formats, such as JPEG, TIFF, and others. Along with the ACR format comes the ability to view and edit RAW files. If you want to get information about this new format and other exciting new features, visit www.adobe.com/creativecloud/features. Content Aware Fill: With Content Aware Fill, you can automatically replace a specific content element in your image with another color, texture, or image. If you want to preview what Content Aware Fill can do for you, check out the demonstration videos at www.youtube.com/user/AdobePhotoshop or www.youtube.com/user/AdobeCreativeCloud. But there is no replacement for practical, hands-on training. In this new course, Figure 11-1 shows one of the demonstration video clips. Figure 11-1

Q: Memory leak in GWT Event bus listener and its finalizer I'm trying to understand how all this works, in particular how EventBus manages its listeners. I read the docs about passing EventBus object to the listener interface, and it said that: A GWT interface is simply an interface with the same method signature as Event.Listener. So the following code snippet public interface DomainEventListener { void domainEvent(Event event); } will be compiled into something like this public void domainEvent(Event event) { someValue = 0; } but the documentation says that event will be no longer available once the called method has completed; any attempt to access it will result in a java.lang.NullPointerException. This is intended behavior. in the talk about the EventBus object. Now, doesn't the above mean that the memory allocated for event is going to be garbage collected? If so, in the code snippet above, value 0 is going to be set but never going to be read again, since it's not accessible anymore, does that mean that the memory allocated for event is still going to be GC'd but never recycled? Is there a way to do something similar to public void domainEvent(Event event) { someValue = 0; event.set('someValue', someValue); } Thanks A: I can't speak as an expert on JVM GC and behaviour of references, but if you take a look at the source code of the gwt-event-receiver-impl.jar you will find that event is not "garbage collected" it is kept around for the lifetime of the instance of the listener. The interface is not a problem and provides similar functionality. I can not find any documentation of what happens if you call set. I'd assume it behaves like doing set('someValue', someValue);. Please note that for stateful applications I'd advise you to explicitly use an instance of some Stateful implementation in order to retain these values. Q: Cannot start node server after adding realtime module I am a beginner and running into an issue. I installed node and npm and created a simple chat room node app. Then I added a realtime module to the app (5th to last line

It is also one of the heaviest planets discovered. Jupiter is a large gaseous planet with a few rocky cores, surrounded by a massive layer of clouds made up of mainly hydrogen and helium. Jupiter has a highly elliptical orbit around the sun. Its orbit varies from a distance of about 690 million kilometres to a distance of over 8,400 million kilometres in one year. When Jupiter is closer to the Sun, it takes longer to get to it, but when it is further away, it takes less time to get there. Like all of the planets, it spins around once in the same time as it orbits the sun. The year on Jupiter lasts about eleven years. Jupiter is the largest planet discovered by human beings and has been studied by many scientists from many different countries in all parts of the world. From one to twelve moons orbit the giant planet. Jupiter is no longer known by the name of the Roman god, but this is a different story. Jupiter is also known by the name of the Arabic word, Abd
