Take it! 5 Summary: It's a simple and lightweight graphical interface that resembles that of your default notepad. It sports a clean and intuitive graphical interface. Create notes easily. You can look for a group of text, such as a letter, number, or a word using the search function. You can also paste text, you insert the current contents of the clipboard into your document. By deleting text, you remove the selected text (but it doesn't get copied to the clipboard). Some more tools and features. It comes with all the usual features that you might find in your default notepad.Q: How to insert multiple rows based on a stored proc with parameters I have a stored procedure that inserts 15 data rows at a time. I would like to pass in a parameter to specify how many rows to insert. When I run the following: strParameter = "A1,B1,C1,D1,E1,F1,G1,H1,I1,J1,K1,L1,M1,N1,O1,P1,Q1" 'InsertRows INSERT INTO MyTable ([MyColumn1],[MyColumn2],...) 'VALUES (' + strParameter + '),' + strParameter + '),' + strParameter + '),' '+ strParameter + '),' + strParameter + '),' + strParameter + '),' '+ strParameter + '),' + strParameter + ')) It doesn't seem to execute like that and I can't see why it wouldn't. The last line is the one I'd like to execute. A: A comma-separated string must be split using
