This data was collected from the latest-generation Konami Engine used in FIFA 19. In FIFA 19 this engine was further optimized in FIFA 20. The result of this unique and time-consuming process allows us to develop the play style and dynamics of every player. This is our most complex technology ever. FIFA developers have been creating the purest simulation of football ever seen in a video game. However, as technology continues to evolve and improve, we believe that we can do better by using this data. We've also been able to improve physics, ball control, anticipation, and player control, each of which is crucial in FIFA. What will I see when I play FIFA 22? Every single one of the 23,079 possible player actions, 1,411 player face reactions, 1,096 unique player animations and 12,869 environmental interactions that the engine can replicate are possible. The ultimate goal is to allow the player to control everything. During the 19th century, football was not a sport which was complicated. Today, because of the rise in popularity and technical advances in game design, everything is complicated. As a result, we are asking many players to change their perception of and approach to the game. 'What if I play the game wrong?' FIFA 22 introduces new rules and new features. However, we have chosen to not make significant changes to the core of the game. We believe that this is the best way for players to enjoy the benefits and new features of the game that we're developing. How is the ball controlled? We have invested more time and effort into precise ball control by reducing the number of actions that the ball can perform. FIFA 22's ball physics engine was optimized even further in FIFA 19 to ensure the ball continues to behave beautifully. The design of the ball continues to focus on allowing players to feel that they can control the ball with precise positioning of their body. The key to football success is anticipation. FIFA 22 allows you to control the ball by first reacting to the situation. The way you move and act is the best way to respond to each situation. With the most precise, realistic and elegant physics, ball and player balance, and

You need to have a good Internet connection, because I'd say that's one of the most important things to the game's survival. Other than that, you can get by with a 450MHz CPU, 64MB RAM and a 5GB hard drive. The game is in English only,
