What is Photoshop? Photoshop (PSD) is a raster graphics editor available for the Macintosh OS and Windows. It is a graphics editor, image processor, and all-purpose design tool. It is used to edit and manipulate raster images, such as photographs, video footage, 2D and 3D images, and vector graphics. Photoshop is also an often used tool in the creation of composite imagery, such as images of movie posters and packaging. Photoshop may be considered a type of illustration software that has the ability to create type and words, edit type, create, and apply strokes. Photoshop, as a tool, has been used since its introduction in 1987 and because of the volume of innovation and the number of features available, some image editors have tried to imitate Photoshop.

However, Photoshop remains the de facto standard and its widespread use has ensured this. Q: Python - PIL Canvas - Difference in a Visual Checker I'm using PIL to take a screenshot and draw on top of it. It worked perfectly until I was given a checker pattern. When I put it in the program, it seems the X and Y coordinates I inputted into the loop don't seem to compare to what the original image looks like on the screen. I'm trying to find out if there's a way to keep the original screen size, and then make a screenshot of just the grid lines. I tried moving the loops from the loop using the variables 'x' and 'y' into the function 'draw_grid' which works perfectly with the original checker, but not the one I put in the program. It's the same deal with the 'grid_y' and 'grid_x' variables. Any help is appreciated!

from PIL import Image, ImageDraw canvas = Image.new('RGB', (1000, 900))
draw = ImageDraw.Draw(canvas)
draw.line((100,200), (100,300), fill=0)
draw.line((50,200), (50,300), fill=0)
def checker(x, y):
    grid_x = int(x/5) * 5
    grid_y = int(y/5) * 5
    draw.line((50+grid_x,20), (100+grid_x,20), fill=0) draw.line((50+grid_y,20), (100+grid_y,20), fill=0)
for x1, y1 in zip(x, y):
    if x1==5 or y1==5:
        print(x1, y1)
    if x1 == 50:
        print("Line Found!")
    if y1 == 20:
        print("Line Found!")

Fans I recently had the incredible experience of attending a rare, sold out concert by the prolific recording artist, Tom Waits. The band, The Knitting Factory, played a set that was loaded with talent. The singer, Nik Kaiser, played a magnificent set of both Tom Waits songs and his own tunes. The drummer, Mike Palmiero, played an incredible set of banging grooves that added an extra bit of boogie to many... more What can I say, I've been a Tom Waits fan since I was a kid and he's always been my favorite artist, above any other songwriter. I appreciate the fact that he's relaxed and wants to be an artist who is comfortable. His songs are very personal and relatable. As well as being able to appreciate the nuances of his vocal skills, I'm happy to praise the... more Tom Waits has just released his highly anticipated album, Rain Dogs. He likes to claim that he is a singer who wants to sound like a man reading a book. And to me, he's channeling Huckleberry Finn in the best way. His voice is slightly crackly and it carries his words perfectly. His music is modern classic rock that anyone can enjoy.

Johannesburg - Daniel Etshu 'Die Bekwemmelheid om te vreugde te blaft, is wat ons kinders op die manier gee wat seker seert' (Engels: 'The ability to play happily in joy, is the way we give our child something of what we see in ourselves') As the saying goes, the children of today will grow up to be the leaders of tomorrow.

Namibia, the landlocked country of a mere two million people, is home to around 80 per cent of the world's remaining wild lions (Panthera leo). These rare species are severely threatened by poaching and habitat loss, and according to a new study by an international team of conservationists, lions in Namibia are faring even worse than most. In a groundbreaking study that is being released at the end of this week (14 July), the team from the University of Exeter, Oxford University, Institut de la Fondation de la Recherche Scientifique, the University of Huddersfield in the UK and the Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology in Germany, found that Namibian lions are being po
