were living the American Dream — living in their own apartment in a beautiful area of suburban Moscow. Russian investigators say that they met that year, when Taissia, 13, was introduced to a Russian agent in the United States who convinced her to help him. There was, however, an unexpected twist to their scheme: The agent was an undercover police officer and, on July 5, 2011, he recorded the pair as he instructed them to create a bomb out of household chemicals. On Dec. 14 they were put on trial in a Moscow court, with Taissia, then 15, giving the prosecution a damning account of their short affair. She said she lied at first, but was so desperate to get money that she then agreed to help, and that she had recruited her mother to do
