Carolina in 2004, a group of environmentalists fly over a weapons bunker that is being constructed by a wealthy and powerful billionaire in the Shoshone National Forest. They spot that the bunker is the home of Edgar Morano, an unsavory character who uses the construction of the bunker to house illegal weapons. Five of the environmentalists decide to look into the project, befriending the foreman and the site manager, who is under pressure from Morano to finish the project by a certain deadline. They learn that Morano and his associates are building five of these bunkers to house nuclear weapons, and they become determined to stop the project, eventually killing Morano in the process. Cast Ewan McGregor as Edgar Morano Aisha Hinds as Annie Barnes Joe Spano as Foreman Ray Garr as Man #1 Jonathan Rhys Meyers as Man #2 Production In 2004, Richard North Patterson's novel The Death of Innocents was published to great acclaim in the United States and the United Kingdom, and it was filmed by Propaganda Films in 2008, directed by David Baboulana and starring Ben Kingsley, Radha Mitchell, Philip Seymour Hoffman and Sam Rockwell. The new adaptation by writer Joe "J. D." Daugherty, with various writers taking turns on the screenplay, was announced in the 6d1f23a050
